We have also issued three reports on DODs program management and oversight of another privatization program - the military housing 11 privatization program. As noted elsewhere in this report, information from those reports provides a useful contrast in approach when compared to the utility privatization program. Finally, we have issued other reports that identified examples where the services moved operations and maintenance funds intended to support one functional area to another 12 functional area and discussed associated impacts. The utility privatization program provides DOD with a method to improve Utility Privatization installation utility systems by using private sector financing as an Implementation alternative to traditional military construction funding. Although DODs initial goals were aggressive in order to use privatization to quickly obtain Has Been Slower improvements and get the services out of the business of owning and Than Expected operating utility systems, actual program implementation has been slower than expected. In 1997, DOD expected that the services would privatize or exempt...
