Ancient records. - Evidently, the necessity for keeping records of business transactions was recognized as long ago as 2500 B. C. Research among the ruins of ancient Babylon has brought to light a large number of tablets containing complete records of commercial transactions. It is even suggested that the Phoenicians, the merchants of the ancient world, evolved the alphabet for the purpose of bookkeeping, in order that they might be able to express the debits and credits and so avoid being cheated. There is record of a highly developed system of accounting in Athens, used by the Greek traders and by Athenian public officials during ancient times. The public accounts, for example, were kept by clerks among whom was a checking clerk of the Senate for money received, another for money disbursed, with a number of subordinate clerks. All the accounts were carefully scrutinized and every person who had any share in the administration was subject to investigation. Rome also had a system of state accounting, based upon the system prevalent in private life. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books.
